RE: SCPSC Docket No. 2005-385-E

Dear Mr. Terrini,

I have followed this Net Metering docket closely and am very interested in seeing the Commission give its final ruling on 2005-385-E. Public awareness in renewables is extremely high, and many people are restless to add South Carolina to the list of states offering Net Metering. If it is the Commission's intention to approve the proposed tariffs then I would encourage it do so as expeditiously as possible.

On the other hand, far be it from me to step in the way of the Commission's plan for doing bigger and better things to promote renewables. If that is their plan, then I hope they continue along that path. I would positively be excited to learn more of those intentions.

I am writing this letter only to suggest to the Commission that they make the next step as soon as possible. I read everyday of other states' advancements in renewable energy and cannot help to think that South Carolina is falling behind. The next great advancement may come in solar and our state won't have the expertise required to manufacture, purchase, design, install, service, or inspect that new clean energy solution. I feel it is imperative South Carolina not lose any more ground when it comes to renewables, especially in areas of policy that prevent these clean energy sources from even getting out of the blocks.

Thank you for considering my request. And thank you for your service to the Palmetto State.

Sincerely,

David Odell
